Gaodhal was bit by a serpent while he and his father were at the Hebrew Camp, but was immediately cured by being touched by the "Rod of Moses". Moses prophesied that no venomous creature should ever live in any place where the posterity of Gaodhal should settle and that they should be the Patrons of all learning. In return for this kindness, Gaodhal and his father supplied the Israelites with provisions for their journey. On the advice of Moses, he seized the Egyptian ships and from them beheld the Egyptians being over in the Red Sea.

Niul was born near the Tower of Babel. He was finely educated and educated the Scythians. Pharaoh Cingeris, King of Egypt, invited Niul to talk to Egypt, which he did with such success that the Pharaoh gave him his daughter Scota in marriage and the lands of Capacirunt on the coast of the Red Sea. When Moses led the Israelites out of Egypt they camped outside Capacirunt, where Niul and his son, Gaodhal, went and talked with Aaron.

Phoeniusa Farsaidh, King of the Scythian Nation, sent men out to learn the languages of the world. He founded an university when they returned and in his school invented the Hebrew, Greek, and Latin alphabets.
